

Interior Architecture and Design

Helga Horner Inc.

“How to live a beautiful life” is one of the most important questions Helga is trying to answer on behalf of their clients throughout an entire project, in order to carefully create an interior design and a harmony between people and their environment. Helga’s success resides in shaping people’s everyday surroundings to fulfill their needs simply, effectively and beautifully. Her interiors may often be luxurious but they’re never extravagant as they’re created to be useful and to last.

Design

Avoiding a signature look, Helga’s work reveals itself slowly by her attention to every detail. Use of varied pieces, both antique and contemporary, give her interiors a feeling of lightness. Books are a necessity, the choice of fabrics give a room style and movement, and every room should hold one element of surprise. It’s that unexpected something that becomes the memorable object within.

Recently her design projects are several Wine Country Estates, a historic Estate in Montecito, a Horse Ranch in Montana, and a Mediterranean Villa in Palm Springs. Most of those projects remain out of the public eye due to client privacy requests, however her works can be seen at the lovely Relais and Chateaux Hotel, Les Mars Hotel in Healdsburg, CA.

Wood & Custom Furniture

Daughter of a fourth generation Austrian furniture maker, Helga has developed from an early age a passion for wood and fine furniture design, a passion that can be read in every custom piece she has designed for the past 15 years: Her understanding of wood species together with her knowledge of fine cabinetry and special finishes make her pieces of furniture complimenting of any interior from classic to modern, without compromising their initial function and use.

Antiques

In addition to her passion for furnishings, Helga appreciates the quality and sophistication of antiques from France, England and Italy, especially of the 17th through early 19th centuries. She has become an expert in this field in being able to ascertain to some certainty if a piece is a true antique or a piece made up of antique elements at a later than period date. This specialized knowledge benefits clients when shopping for and purchasing antique furniture. Helga has provided consulting services to such clients as an architectural firm in charge of restoration of the Sheraton Palace Hotel, as well as the noted collector, Ann Getty.

Her interior designs are reflective of her love of beautiful and rare antique pieces. Helga believes in using, restoring or remodeling existing antiques or pieces of client’s own furniture.
